Lions Club installs new President

The Lions Club of Guyra held their annual changeover on Wednesday evening June 1st at the Guyra Bowling Club. Zone Chairman Lloyd Levingston installed the new President Jim Betts and his executive for the ensuing year.

In his President's report outgoing President Peter King reflected on the club's 51st year.

"It seems to have flown by faster than expected, probably due to our combined ages. The saddest part was farewelling two longstanding members, Lion Harry Williams and Lion Maurie Rohrshiem.

"Having kicked off the year with some Covid 19 interference we were unable to hold many fundraisers in 2021 but the Christmas raffle was a great success. The Easter raffle was soon upon us and we are grateful for the support of Kirk's IGA management and staff. Our raffles ran very well we were able to add more to the coffers.

"2022 started with a great Youth of the year Quest with three excellent competitors representing themselves and their schools with a maturity and ability far beyond their years. This was followed up with the regional final hosted by our Club with great representation from other clubs within our region.

"In summary I can report we had a successful year allowing us to support all our local sporting and community groups. Finally I'd like to thank all members and their wives and partners for their support throughout the year and wish incoming President Jim the very best in the coming year."

Outgoing President Peter King handing over to Jim Betts who was installed as the new President by Zone Chairman Lloyd Levingston

In his final duty as President, Peter presented various organisations and charities with donations. Locally they have supported Guyra Central, St Marys, Bald Blair,

Black Mountain, and Ben Lomond Schools. They also made donations to Kolora Hostel, Guyra Youth activities, Can Assist, Troutfest, the Men's Shed, Junior Cricket, Junior Soccer, and Junior Rugby League

Further afield they donated to the Australian Childhood Cancer, Australian Lions foundation, Lion's Cord Blood, Ronald McDonald

House, Lion's Clubs NSW-ACT Save Sight and Health Care limited, Lion's Prostrate Cancer Research Foundation, Lion's Club International Foundation, Care Flight, Shine for Kids, Lion's Australia R&A Foundation, and the Westpac Rescue Helicopter.

On Friday, 3rd June 2022 we celebrated Reconciliation Week at Black Mountain Public School. We started the day with a Smoking Ceremony followed by 'The Bunyip Story' read by Banbai Ranger, Tremane Patterson. The parents and students planted three Grevillea trees in our Reconciliation Garden. This was followed by the judging of our colouring competition, cutting the Reconciliation Cake and a morning tea which was enjoyed by everyone.

Congratulations to the winners of the colouring in competition Dustin Turnham and Jamerikai Patterson.

Regrowth workshop

More than two years on from devastating bushfires, locals are still putting the pieces together. The grass may be greener but for many, the trauma remains near the surface.

A free upcoming Regrowth workshop on Wednesday, June 15, seeks to help the Guyra community work through the fallout of the bushfires and subsequent natural disasters, and learn how to prepare emotionally for similar threats. Hosted by HealthWISE, the event is part of a series run across the New England North West, funded by the Hunter New England and Central Coast Primary Health Network (HNECC PHN).

“We’re bringing a range of services into one room,” said HealthWISE Mental Health Lived Experience Worker Donna Boughton. Support workers, service providers and financial counsellors will attend and there will be talks on financial hardship and managing anxiety and stress.

“Prior to the bushfires, there was drought, and then there was flooding also, and of course COVID-19; so it’s been disaster after disaster. It’s quite easy for bushfires to be put on the back burner with all that’s been going on, but the effect that it had on the communities back then, and even now, is real,” Scott Wood from HNECC PHN said.

He said the workshops were about building community resilience by upskilling both service providers and community leaders.

“We have the practical plans of preparing for bushfires, but we want to emotionally prepare for it too. If we feel in control and safe and have a plan, we can better manage the more practical things,” Donna said. She said it wasn’t about being pessimistic, simply being ready for any eventuality.

Running from 5.30pm and 8.30pm at the Guyra Bowling and Recreation Club, event-goers will learn more about how their mind and body reacts to disasters, and ongoing effects that can take place months or even years later. Participants will be invited to work on a collective art project on the theme of ‘putting the pieces back together’. HealthWISE nurses will offer free health checks.

A light supper will be provided, and there will be a chance to relax and socialise.

“It’s a combination of enjoying a social situation, being able to talk about and be aware of what’s going on within when we face disaster, managing it when we’re going through it, and finally, learning how to heal.” Donna said.

Numbers are limited, so locals are encouraged to register soon via Eventbrite or call Donna for more information on 0437 961 137.

Council and SES teams clean up after gale-force winds

State Emergency Service and council teams across the region were busy clearing debris last week, and some residents remained without power for more than 48 hours after wild weather blasted the Northern Tablelands.

As strong winds ripped through the region, damage was reported over a wide area from the Liverpool Plains area up to Tenterfield.

High winds, combined with the high soil moisture content following the consistent wet weather during the last year, saw a large number of trees downed and hampered access for repair crews.

By midday on Tuesday, more than 123 calls for assistance had been logged with SES units across New England. More than half of all calls received across

Glen Ross Rd was one of many that were blocked by fallen trees

New England came into the staff at Armidale, Guyra, Uralla and Walcha units who logged a combined 85 calls for assistance.

The SES partnered with council and the Rural Fire Service to clear trees from across roads and return access to the public. Armidale Regional Council crews were kept busy clearing trees that were blocking roads.

At the height of the storm, more than 20,000 customers were without power across Essential Energy’s network footprint.

By 10am on Tuesday, the number of customers without power supply across the wider New England North West and Northern Tablelands stood at around 5,200 including 374 in Guyra.

By Wednesday afternoon, those numbers were reduced to 117 still without power in Armidale, 53 in Guyra, 6 in Glen Innes and 3 in Tenterfield and the majority of those customers had their power supply restored that evening.

Getting to the root of the problem

The University of New England (UNE) is now temporarily home to a replica of one of the largest tomato glasshouse operations in the Southern Hemisphere, with Costa Group installing a small-scale version of its hydroponic production system in UNE's on-campus glasshouse complex.

The collaboration will open the doors to a game-changing experiment for PhD candidate Phil Thomas' research project, which could help transform the way commercial growers identify diseases and plant stress in hydroponic tomato crops.

The project is being funded by the Future Food Systems CRC and could provide large growers like Costa with a streamlined way of monitoring the health of crops.

The experiment will be conducted on campus over the next few months, and will compare the root microbiome of healthy plants with those that have been subjected to unfavourable conditions, such as too much heat, not enough water, or disease.

Phil says collaborating with professional growers gives insight into the most effective growing methods, and ensures the results will be applicable in real-world situations.

This experiment will build on the previous work Phil has done over the past two years' of his PhD, and will get underway in the coming weeks.

Weekly Wool Market

June 3rd - It was a very similar result to last week for the market with some small losses being recorded over most micron categories during both selling days.

A 9 cent decline in the Northern Region Indicator on the first day of sales was followed by a further 2 cent loss on the final day.

The largest weekly decline was in the Merino Carding Indicator falling 50 cents or 5%. The final day of sales did however close on a solid note with the 17.5 micron and finer types all showing small gains.

Exchange rates continue to play a part in the current environment with the market actually lifting 5 cents when viewed in US dollars. 30,292 bales were sold nationally for the week with a passed in rate of 13.1%.

Major buyers included Tianyu, PJ Morris and Techwool. With 1 month to go before the end of the season AWTA test data is showing a 6% increase in the number of bales tested nationally compared to the corresponding period last season.

This is broadly in line with AWEX auction data that is showing a 7.9% increase in first hand offerings and the Australian Wool Production Forecasting Committees latest estimate of a 6.5% increase in national production.

Gazette's Celebrity Footy Tipping

The Round 13 shortened week of NRL footy was anything but a level playing field, as I noted last week!

Round 13 actually proved that a couple of teams may be at the bottom of the ladder for a long, long time to come.

The Bulldogs and Warriors both put in another lack-lustre performance against understrength teams, both getting beaten by big margins.

The Panthers once again fired with an understrength team along with the Green Machine, whilst Manly found a way to win without their injury prone fullback.

Round 14 may see a few players rested after the State of Origin, so keep that in the back of your mind for this week's picks!

Wishing Angel the happiest of anniversaries this week and Go the Blues! 😊
